Bouviere and the Sport of Obedience

There is often a misconception that obedience is dull, boring and robs the dog of its natural instincts and

- Development of a strong bond and relationship with your dog. It gives you a good companion. Obedience training is the basis for many performance sports. It is virtually impossible to compete in obedience without a strong bond and relationship with your dog.
- Obedience training is the basis for many performance sports. It is virtually impossible to compete in obedience without a strong bond and relationship with your dog.
- One of the great things about this sport is that with obedience, a very athletic and energetic dog can compete and win.
- Obedience is a good opportunity to put our breeds' working heritage to use. It keeps both young and old dogs busy and happy.
- It helps establish the pack leader. Bouviere are and are powerful dogs. Someone has to be in charge.
- It can reduce legal liability. Society is very litigious. It is an asset to have a well-trained dog and a good owner.
- As far as equipment is concerned, obedience is a relatively inexpensive sport in which to participate.
- Earn companion dog titles. The joy of earning that first qualifying leg, the first title or special wins last.
